Always 'Too Much Everything' for the Apostles of Scarcity

Story of the Day
"These rock formations," explained the tired guide after the tourist party had scrambled over them, "were brought here by the glaciers."
"But where are the glaciers now?" asked a quizzical old lady.
"They've gone back, madam, for more rock," replied the guide.

In 1933 most Americans figured their trouble was they didn't have enough money, but the bright boys of government said that was all wrong. The bright boys said the trouble wasn't too little money — it was too much of everything else. So they advocated destroying food and staples that men had worked to create.

In the war and postwar years we laid our troubles to the fact that civilian goods were extremely scarce. But the government boys said the real trouble was there was too much money and folks were bidding up prices. Therefore the government boys jacked up taxes to astronomical heights (and are still keeping 'em there) in order to destroy money.

And now we come to the greatest gem of all: The government lads have just discovered America has too much land. Most of us would have said, we don't have enough people. But the government men, who take the same statistics as the rest of us and always come up with a different answer, say: Too much land.

They are taking out of cultivation this year 30 million acres — more land than the whole state of Pennsylvania — and the "planners" say they'll have to cut even deeper in 1951.

I know the "experts" have statistics — but on the basis of government's long-range record we are justified in doubting the ability of the government men to take any group of statistics and reach a sound conclusion.

This government which, ever since 1933, has been crying we have too much of this and too much of that, and now says we have too much land — this is the same government that:

1. Homesteaded the West, and when all the homesteads had been given out said, "There are no more frontiers" — because there wasn't enough land.

2. Found such a shortage of productive lands that it went out in the Western desert and spent billions to make the white sands fertile.

3. And has spent other millions for flood control and soil erosion control in order to improve the production capacity of existing farmlands.

This is the past history of America I am writing about. Some very big men had a hand in making it. Were they all wrong?

Were they all wrong, and are the little men in Washington today the only ones who are right — with their plaintive bleat "Too much — Too much?"

They've cut 30 million acres off the farms this year, and say it will be worse in 1951 because the farmers are stepping up production on the remaining acres. The government men lament because 10 years ago there were only one and a half million tractors on the land, while today there are three and three-quarter million tractors. The government men are sad because 10 years ago the farmers used only 8 million tons of fertilizer, while today they use 18 million tons.

Is this bad?

Are you kidding?

There isn't too much land.

There simply aren't enough people to fill the land; and the reason there aren't enough people to fill the land is because — using the government's own explanation of statistics — too many people have gone to Washington.

Rogers, Ark. Isolated by Cloudburst

Rogers, May 10 — (P)—Overnight rain of cloudburst proportions brought flash floods on numerous northwest Arkansas streams and caused considerable damage in communities.

Rogers was virtually isolated. Damage of undetermined extent was reported at Springdale and at Johnson.

The Frisco's southbound train was halted at Springdale and a northbound freight was stopped at Johnson while blast was put on the tracks and at a bridge over Clear Creek. Many highways out of Springdale were closed.

State Trooper Wallace Parnell said early today that main highways leading from Rogers in every direction were under water and virtually impassable.

He reported also that 10 to 15 head of cattle on the C. A. Linbarger farm at Bella Vista, near here, were drowned in a flash flood.

Parnell said the rain began about dusk last night. It was still raining early today, he reported.

A private plane crashed-landed near the Rogers airport shortly after the rain started. The three occupants, all residents of Springfield, Mo., were taken to a Bentonville hospital. The pilot, Howard Coones, 21, was most severely injured. The passengers were Mrs. Hazel Booth, 44, and her daughter, Miss Eddy Booth, 22.

Mrs. Stuart Dies in Hope Hospital

Mrs. Flora Stuart, wife of the late H. H. Stuart and a resident of Hope for many years, died last night in a local hospital.

She is survived by three brothers, John A. Miller of Sedalia, Mo., Nelson, and Clyde Miller of Hope, a sister, Mrs. Charles B. Smith of Denver, Colo.

Funeral services will be held at Herndon-Cornelius Funeral home at 2 p.m. Thursday by the Rev. J. M. Hamilton with burial at Rose Hill cemetery. Active pallbearers: Albert Graves, Crit Stuart, Roy Anderson, Lyle Brown, Syd McMath and Harry Shiver.

Man, Father of 6, Trapped in Well Shaft Waits for Death or Rescue to End His Agony

New York, May 10 — (P)—A burned and twisted man, father of six children waited for either rescue or death to end his agony today at the bottom of a caved-in well shaft.

He was trapped in the darkness of a 20-foot pit under a Brooklyn garage yesterday noon when a falling boulder pinned him in a natural vise.

More than 50 rescue workers, mostly police and firemen, half-wrecked the barnlike garage in their haste to cut a trench to his side before they lost the race to gangrene, shock, and the burns from a freak flash fire in the shaft.

The trapped man, 49-year-old Dominick Atteo, received the last rites of the Roman Catholic church at 1 a.m. (EST) from a priest lowered into the hole by block and tackle.

Atteo told the Rev. Patrick O'Connor "I feel very strong" after he confessed and received the sacrament.

The physician at the scene, Dr. Harold Berson, called Atteo's endurance "amazing," but feared for the worst if rescue was long delayed.

The rescue task began almost immediately after the accident. While sweating emergency crews used everything from a power crane to hand trowels to speed the work. Atteo's young and tearful wife knelt by the gaping hole and called down:

"Hang on, Dom... you'll be all right."

The trapped man called back, "I'm tired... I'm awful tired." Atteo, a contractor, started to dig the well last week in an effort to tap water for washing cars at the garage. City water cannot be used for that purpose during New York City's water shortage.

The fire flared up when one of Atteo's sons lowered a cigaret to him. It virtually exploded in the rich oxygen that was being pumped into the shaft to stimulate the victim.

Plan Discussed to Pool Coal in Europe

London, May 10 — (P)—A French proposal to pool Europe's coal and steel was seen here today as a possible solution to a major cold war problem facing the West.

Western diplomats here for the Big Three talks beginning tomorrow call such German cooperation the most important step necessary to bolster the West against Russia.

Announcing the plan approved by the French cabinet, Foreign Minister Robert Schuman proposed that the pooling start with France's own rich Lorraine and Saar areas and Germany's industrial Ruhr valley.

West Germany's Chancellor Konrad Adenauer quickly termed the proposal a "generous step by France towards Germany."

The French plan, he continued, appeared to "create the pre-conditions for making any future conflict between France and Germany impossible."

At the same time Adenauer announced his government already was planning a step toward participation in European unity. Adenauer said his cabinet had accepted an invitation for West Germany to enter the council of Europe as an associate member. It would have an advisory status in the council's consultative assembly but would not be represented on the controlling committee of foreign ministers.

Schuman proposed that a "common high authority" would control the Franco-German coal and steel output, and that other European countries, "East or West," would be invited to join the pool.

DeQueen Votes to Bring in Gas System

DeQueen, May 10 — (P)—DeQueen voters authorized a city-owned natural gas system yesterday in an election that just missed being unanimous.

The city-owned system was favored by 857 voters. One individualist voted against the proposal.

Result of the referendum will permit the city to issue to $75,000 in revenue bonds for construction of a transmission line and distribution system.

The Louisiana Nevada Tr a sit company will be the source of supply.

Taft, Wherry Disagree on FEPC Debate

Washington, May 10 — (P)—Senator Taft (R-Ohio) and Senator Wherry (R-Nebr) disagreed on just when to take the first step toward chocking off senate debate on a proposed fair employment practices commission.

Taft, chairman of the senate Republican policy committee, told a reporter he would support the proposal of majority leader Lucas (D-Ill) to file a cloture (debate limiting) petition Monday, with a showdown vote next Wednesday.

Wherry, the GOP floor leader, said in a separate interview that action Monday would be too early.

"I think we should have full and fair debate before any cloture attempt is made," Wherry added. "This thing should be aired completely."

Lucas has passed the word to administration Democrats that he may ask a test next Wednesday on President Truman's request for a federal commission to prohibit job discrimination because of race, religion or national origin.

Senator Russell (D-Ga), floor manager for the bloc of southern senators who are fighting FEPC, said he would battle any attempt for a quick pass "as vigorously as I know how."

Russell complained that opponents of FEPC have had little chance to present their major speeches against the plan because the senate has been spending much of its talking time this week on other matters.

Foundation for Science Set Up

Washington, May 10 — (P)—President Truman today signed a bill setting up a national science foundation to promote progress in science as a national policy.

He said the establishment of the foundation "is a major landmark in the history of science in the United States."

In a 600-word statement issued with his Western tour he said scientific knowledge is "indispensable to our continuing growth, prosperity and security."

He added it was not enough for the U. S. to keep abreast of the rest of the world, "we must maintain our leadership."

"We have come to know that our ability to survive and grow as a nation depends to a very large degree upon our scientific progress."

The legislation provides for a 24-member board to supervise the letting of research contracts and the awarding of fellowships and scholarships. The operating head of the foundation will be a $15,000-a-year director to be appointed by the President.

The foundation is to cooperate with the defense department and the atomic energy commission.

For the first year, the bill authorizes a $500,000 appropriation for the foundation's work, with $15,000,000 annual thereafter. However, separate legislation actually providing the money is necessary.

Before sending the bill to the White House, congress struck out a controversial provision that would have required the FBI to pass judgment on the loyalty of persons employed by the foundation or receiving scholarships. The FBI will continue to make factual reports on the background of such persons but will not be required to evaluate the reports or pass judgment on applicants.

Hours Changed on Shorthand and Typing Classes

James H. Jones, superintendent of schools announced today that the adult education class in typing will meet from 7 to 8 p.m. each Monday and Thursday night instead of from 8 to 9 p.m. The class in shorthand will meet from 8 to 9 p.m. each Monday and Thursday. Any adult interested in taking either or both of the courses contact Mr. Jones or John Martin at the High school.

Truman to Veto Flood Bill Reports Persist

Washington, May 10 — (P)—Reports persisted today that President Truman may veto the bill authorizing flood control and navigation projects estimated to cost $1,730,000,000.

Senator Magnuson (D-Wash) said "there have been some hints that the bill might be vetoed."

He left Washington last night to join the President's train at either Pendleton, Ore., or Pasco, Wash., today, and confer with him.

"The President has the bill with him on his Western trip," Magnuson told a reporter, "and I have asked him to delay action until after I can confer with him. I understand the White House does not like the bill because the senate failed to include in it the provision for setting up a Columbia basin account to handle the finances of the present and future projects in the Columbia river basin in the Pacific Northwest."

"I understand also that a provision for the army engineers to handle a reclamation project in Arkansas also has not met with White House approval."

The bill contains authorization of $8,000,000 for the Grand Prairie-Bayou Meto flood control project in Arkansas. The President sent two messages to congress during consideration of the bill urging that the project be eliminated.

Probers Get Peek at Loyalty Files

Washington, May 10 — (P)—Senate investigators got their first look today at loyalty files on 81 persons named by Senator McCarthy in his charges of communism in the government.

Four members of the senate foreign relations subcommittee began looking them over at the White House shortly before 9 a. m. (EST). They were Chairman Tydings (D-Md) and Senators McMahon (D-Conn), Green (D-R.I.) and Lodge (R-Mass).

Eben Ayers, assistant White House press secretary, said the files were brought to the White House executive offices about an hour before the senators arrived.

Before he went to the White House, Tydings told reporters it was his understanding that the files "contain not only all of the data which the state department investigators have assembled but also all the loyalty data which the FBI has gathered and referred to the state department, and which has been made a part of these files."

Tydings said the committee members intend to pursue the examination of the files "with all diligence possible commensurate with our other duties in congress."

The senators did their file inspecting in the cabinet room.

Around the table with them were John Peurifoy, assistant secretary of state; Brig. Gen. Conrad Snow, chairman of the state department's loyalty board; Peyton Ford, assistant to the attorney general, and Donald Dawson, one of President Truman's administrative assistants.

Rejects Move to Place Tax on Horse Betting

Washington, May 10 — (P)—The house ways and means committee today rejected a proposal to put a $70,000,000 to $80,000,000 a year federal excise tax on horse race betting.

The proposal would have imposed a 5 per cent tax on the approximately $1,500,000,000 bet annually. The administration had made no recommendation such a tax.

A committee spokesman told a reporter the proposal was rejected primarily because the committee members did not want the federal government to encroach on this source that is used by some states to get a substantial part of their revenue.

Also, it was pointed out that no such proposal was made during the long committee hearings on tax legislation.

The committee now is seeking to find new revenue sources to offset cuts of over $1,000,000,000 it wants to make in excise taxes.

President Truman has warned that this must be done or he will veto the tax bill.

Midwest Flood Leaves 17 Dead or Missing

By The Associated Press

Seventeen persons were missing and more thousands were homeless today as the most damaging floods in years swept over three midwest states.

Human misery rose in the flood areas of North Dakota, Minnesota and Nebraska. Scores of communities were isolated as the surging waters from rain-swollen rivers and streams spilled over thousands of acres of land.

Across the border in southern Manitoba, the flood crisis mounted. The homeless was some 15,000, and another 10,000 faced evacuation.

All the fatalities were in Nebraska. One of the worst floods in nearly 50 years struck the southern section of the state yesterday. Seven bodies had been recovered. Hope was abandoned for the other 10 missing persons.

The flash floods that hit southeast Nebraska followed downpours earlier in the week. The waves of water engulfed homes and swept cars from highways. Most of the dead were highway travelers caught by floodwaters.

Seven or eight passengers in a Burlington bus enroute from Nebraska City to Lincoln were caught in a crushing wave of water on highway near Unadilla. Three passengers survived by hanging to trees. Four Nebraska City persons lost their lives when their car was swept from a highway near Auburn by floodwaters.

The flooding Red river, bordering North Dakota and Minnesota, dealt further devastating blows to property and livestock. Some other streams in northern Minnesota also were running wild. The Red Cross reported more families driven from their homes all along the swollen Red river.

Gov. Fred G. Aandahl ordered an aerial livestock feeding service started today.

Oppenheimer Denies Any Secret Meet

Oakland, Calif., May 10 — (AP) — Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer flatly denies the accusation of a woman ex-Communist that the top atomic scientist held a secret, closed meeting of Communist agents at his Berkeley home in July, 1941.

Mrs. Paul Crouch, admittedly a Communist from 1929 to 1942, told a state senate committee here yesterday that she attended such a Communist meeting at Dr. Oppenheimer's home when he was in the physics department of the University of California.

Last night in Washington, Dr. Oppenheimer, now director of the Institute for Advanced Studies at Princeton, N. J., denied it. He said in a statement:

"I have never been a member of the Communist party. I never assembled any such group of people for any such purpose in my home or anywhere else. I am unable to recall any gathering in my house that could reasonably have been mistaken for such a meeting. Neither the name Crouch or the accounts of Mr. and Mrs. Crouch recall to me anyone I have ever known."

Mrs. Crouch, who became a Communist in 1929 while a textile worker on strike at Canton, N. C., was called before the state senate committee to determine if Communists had access to the university's atom-smashing laboratory.

She said the meeting was called so that her husband, then an active Communist organizer in the San Francisco bay area, could explain that the party line was changed to full support for the war effort after Germany attacked the Soviet Union.

Strike Brings Curtailed of Railways

Chicago, May 10 — (AP) — Railroad firemen struck today against four big railroad systems as federal mediators kept trying to halt the walkout.

It was the first major railroad strike since May, 1946.

The strike of some 18,000 firemen, threatening to cut sharply into the nation's rail transportation, became effective at 6 a. m. (local standard time). At that hour, federal mediators still were trying to get the carriers and union officials to reach an agreement.

They had been trying for nearly 24 consecutive hours. But there was no peace when the strike deadline in the Eastern and Central time zones passed.

The strike areas, as defined by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, includes the Pennsylvania lines west of Harrisburg, Pa.; the New York Central system west of Buffalo, N. Y.; and all of the Santa Fe system and the Southern railway.

"The strike should be on," said Brotherhood President David B. Robertson as he emerged from the conference with the mediators at 6 a. m. (CDT).

"But we still are working for a settlement," said the 73-year-old, white-haired union president.

One hour later the union officials still were closeted with the members of the national railway mediation board. They were in session in a near North Side hotel room. In a loop hotel room, railroad representatives were in all-night session and kept in contact with the union leaders and mediators by telephone.

Union spokesmen said that some 90 per cent of the affected lines are in the eastern and central time zones.

They added that some 50,000 to 100,000 other railroad workers would be made idle by the walkout. The number of idle, they said, would increase if the strike continues.

Dear Miss Dix: Why is it that so many young girls and women try all of their schemes and wiles to get the attention of married men? Do they not realize the harm they are doing in alienating husbands and wives and breaking up homes and orphaning little children? I am not denying that the men are weak to fall for these scheming women. They are. But many a middle-aged man would never think of having an affair with a woman if she didn't make the first advances.

R. M.

Answer: Of course, there are many cases in which a woman who is thrown either in society or in business with a man in whom she finds her ideal, falls in love with him. For this she is not to be blamed, since the heart is an unruly member over which we have no control.

Motivated by Gain

But in the great majority of cases in which women, and especially young girls, have affairs with married men they are actuated by the very sordid motive of gain. The married man is settled in business, he earns more money than a boy does and hence is a better paying prospect. Also, he is easier to work, for he is flattered and flustered at the idea of a girl finding him romantic.

But it is true that nine times out of ten when a sedate middle-aged man suddenly develops a wandering foot it is because some woman has signaled to him across the fence and made him jump the bars. That doesn't excuse him, of course. But it is just how it generally happens.

There are women who are adventuresses by nature and for whom married men have a fatal fascination merely because they are forbidden fruit. Just because a man belongs to some other woman makes him more desirable to them than he would be if he were free. They get a sadistic pleasure in torturing the poor wife and watching her helpless jealousy as she sees her husband paying court to a girl half her age, far prettier than she ever was, and spending the money on her that ought to go to buy the children clothes and shoes. It does not concern them that they are breaking up homes and getting as much as they can out of men and they have no pity for the poor wives and children.

Dear Miss Dix: I am a professional man well past my youth. I have literally battled my way through poverty and adversity to a leading position in my profession. I am desperately in love with a beautiful and brilliant woman, but I have a rival who is younger and better-looking than I am. He is a fine dancer and a favorite with women and he is also a man of good mental ability and draws a larger salary than I do. The lady is undecided in her choice between us. When we are together she is very gracious and expresses her admiration for my mental ability and my victories over difficulties, but in the presence of the other man she seems to "favor" him. Would you advise me in my efforts to win her to follow the same tactics I have in other matters where I have won out by keeping everlastingly at it? Does this method win hearts? X.

Answer: Certainly it does. There is no better technique for courtship than simply to camp on a woman's trail and never give up until she has married some other man. Nine times out of ten it is successful, because faithfulness is one virtue that women esteem in men more than any other, and unfaithfulness is the fault they fear most in husbands.

Then the man who is always hanging about makes himself necessary to a woman. She gets to depend on him for companionship and for the affection and admiration which are the wine of life to her. This may not seem to her at first like the romantic love of which she has dreamed, but by degrees it wears down her resistance and then some day she discovers that the persistent lover whom she discouraged is the one man in the world she wants to marry.

In your case, remember for your comfort that women do not put the stress on beauty that men do, and that they are far more intrigued by the way a man does things than by the way he looks.

Dear Miss Dix: Which is the better prospect for a husband — a young man who has sown his wild oats but shows signs of settling down, or one who has always been a model of good behavior?

UNDECIDED

Answer: The French say that a reformed roamer makes the best husband, but why take damaged goods when you can get good material? Besides, almost invariably a wife has to help her husband reap the harvest of his wild-owl crop. The best bet for any woman is the man who has always run straight.

Dear Miss Dix: I am wondering whether to marry or not. I am 26 and have a job but dislike my work and long for a home. The man I am considering has no education, but by pinching pennies has accumulated a fortune. He offers security and he would be good to me even if he is close with himself. But he is personally repulsive to me. My mother says I would soon learn to love him and that all men are alike when once you are married to one and all the older people say I am foolish to let this opportunity slip by. What happens to girls when they sell themselves for a mess of pottage?

ANNE

Answer: Most of them get divorces or else they drag along through dreary years regretting their bargain for nothing makes marriage worth while except love. There's no happiness in it except spending the long years of your life with somebody who is congenial and companionable and in whose society you find a never-ending joy.

Will Resist Him

Every marriage calls for sacrifices particularly from the wife. It calls for adjustments that the wife must make for the most part. No man is easy to live with but where a woman loves her husband it takes the sting out of the sacrifices she must make and blinds her to his faults. But this doesn't happen if she does not love him. Then she resents everything he has to do for him and his intolerable offense against her.

Your mother's optimistic belief that you will fall in love with your husband after marriage is not justified by experience. A

THE STORY: Falling in love had been far from Clemency's first experience when she became a nurse in the army during the war. She had been married to a man who was a failure in every way. Clemency had been married to him for five years and she had been a nurse for three years. She had been a nurse for three years and she had been married to him for five years. She had been a nurse for three years and she had been married to him for five years.

XXXI

AS Syre reached the door, she looked back. Clemency was bending over Baba, who clutched hold of her with one small, feverish hand. The sight of her child clinging to the girl stirred an illogical resentment to life.

First Piers, then Baba. A moment before she had been on the brink of a revelation, now she changed her mind, saying instead, "Send for me if you want me. I'm going to lie down again for a little while. I'll tell Justine to come to you."

She went out, and Clemency, remaining by Baba, who was murmuring broken, difficult-to-interpret phrases, was thinking that if things had turned out differently it would be she herself who was driving away from Red Alocs. Piers would come back; and she would have to face him.

But that was something which she definitely did not want to contemplate now.

In an incredibly short time, considering the double journey he had to make, Piers returned to Red Alocs with Dr. Rigaud.

The diagnosis was even worse than Clemency had feared—double pneumonia.

By now Baba was tossing and turning with unceasing restlessness. Having made his examination the doctor gave her an injection.

tion, to quiet her, but his eyes were troubled as he rose from beside the bed.

"Now my dear mademoiselle," he said, "in pneumonia much—almost everything depends on the nursing. I can trust you to carry out my instructions."

"Yes, doctor, of course. You—she's going to get better?" Clemency pleaded.

He spread his hands in a swift, expressive gesture. "Medical science can do a great deal today—once I could have given no hope at all, but now there should be every chance. There would be more if I had been called in yesterday."

"I blame myself," Clemency told him. "I ought to have insisted on your coming yesterday, but I thought she only had a bad feverish cold."

"A not unnatural mistake. How did she catch cold in the first place?"

She hesitated, then compromised by telling him that while she was out of the nursery someone had left the window wide open, and Baba had a habit of kicking her bed clothes off.

He nodded. "She was hot, and then lay there in cold night air?"

HE frowned, but that was something which could not be undone, and he went on with instructions for the things which could be done. Then, telling her that she must not be on duty all the time and saying he would arrange with Mrs. Amberley about a night nurse, he went away.

Dr. Rigaud brought Sister Theresa with him when he returned that evening and arranged to stay the night with the sick child.

Syre sat, white-faced and despairing, staring at Baba, and Clemency was thankful when she left the room. Jon prowled about outside the room, like an unquiet spirit, white and haggard, and 10 years older to look at.

Only Piers seemed to keep away from the nurseries. That, at least, was something to be thankful for, Clemency told herself. Or was it? Even while she despised herself, her heart yearned for him—that heart she knew she would never be able to call back into her own keeping. She had taken off her ring—in any case she could not have gone on wearing it with her hands constantly in disinfectants!

Although Sister Theresa took over from about 9 o'clock, Clemency was still determined not to give up her vigil entirely, in case Baba realized that she was in strange hands. But she had been going almost constantly since sunrise and she knew she must rest. First, she felt she must have a breath of fresh air. Wrapping a coat about her, she slipped downstairs and out into the courtyard.

ABOVE were the same stars that she had shown only two nights ago when she stood in the circle of Piers' arms and felt that singing joy in her heart when she had believed that the particular star of her destiny had come down to bring her heart's desire.

It was all over. Piers must realize that as clearly as she did. He had kept clear of her all day, but she knew that there could still be no escape from that inevitable, next meeting with him, and again the panic desire to get away thrust itself upon her.

Foolish! she thought. There was no escape. If the whole world was between them, and a thousand Syries held them apart, her heart would still be his.

It was not even as though he were happy—or ever could have been happy with Syre. How utterly incredible that a man like Piers should forget every scrap of honor for a woman like that. No wonder he looked tortured.

But he had loved Syre; loved her desperately and was going to marry her, and then something had gone wrong. But it wasn't that which mattered. It was what had happened here.

Had not Piers told her: "There are many things you have to forgive me. Men are fools, mistaking dress for gold, the mirage for reality."

sease. Certainly they ruin more lives than all the powers of evil by spoiling children when they are babies and bring them up to be selfish, undisciplined youngsters who know no law but their own wills and who defy all authority.

No child should be brought up in the house with a grand mother or a maiden aunt unless the grandmother, and the maiden aunt have self-restraint enough to keep hands off them and leave them to their mother to rear.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I am the most unhappy girl in the world because the boy that I am in love with doesn't care beans about me. What can I do about it?

BOBBY G.

Answer: Absolutely nothing. Love is not an emotion that can be compelled. It comes and goes as it will and no one knows why. It is a matter of taste, of the imagination, of some subtle appeal, and if you do not have it for a boy, you simply lack it, and that is all there is to it.

Your best plan is to quit thinking about him and turn your affections upon some more responsive youth.

Cold War to Be Long Says Mr. Truman

Aboard Truman Train, May 10 — (AP) — President Truman acted today to bolster the nation's atomic strength as he held out the grim prospect that the cold war with Russia will continue "for a long, long time."

He disclosed, in a speech at Pocatello, Idaho, the signing of the national science foundation act. He said it will keep the United States ahead in scientific developments and help it "exert a more vital force for peace."

The critical international situation was uppermost in the President's expressed thoughts as he began, at 6 a.m. (Mountain time) the first of 14 talks on a swing through Idaho and Oregon.

"The first atomic explosion in history took place in the desert of New Mexico in July, 1945," he said in a speech prepared for his trainside audience at Pocatello.

"I decided at that time that I would do my utmost to see that this new discovery was used in a way which would make the world a better place to live in."

"Nothing that has happened since 1945 has shaken my resolve to see that great force be used for peace."

In a separate statement, Mr. Truman said the act, creating an independent agency to promote scientific research, will add to the supply of knowledge which is "indispensable to our continued growth, prosperity, and security."

"The fact that the world has not found post-war security in no way lessens the need for the national science foundation," he emphasized.

Higher Education Commission to Meet May 16

Fayetteville, May 10 — (AP) — The Arkansas Commission on Higher Education will meet at the University of Arkansas, May 16. Harry Colay of Magnolia is chairman of the group. Dr. Norman Burns of the University of Chicago is director of the survey.

Princess and Hubby May Get a Welcome

Paris, May 10 — Persian Princess Fatiemeh and her American husband paved the way to peace in Iran's royal family with a second — and Moslem — wedding ceremony here today.

Fatiemeh, sister of the Shah of Iran, revealed also that her 25-year-old bridegroom, Vincent Lee Hillyer of Los Banos, Cal., had abandoned Christianity last Sunday and accepted her own Moslem faith.

The couple were married first in a civil ceremony in Rome early in April. The angry Shah stripped the young and beautiful princess of her royal prerogatives. He later relented and said he would restore the privileges if the pair went through a Moslem ceremony.

Among the guests at the wedding today was movie actress Rita who went through the Moslem ceremony last year with Aly Khan.

Rita took time out from the wedding to repeat to reporters denials of recent rumors in an Italian paper that she and Aly might divorce.

It's not true," she said. Rita's father-in-law, the Aga Khan — one of the world's richest men and spiritual leader of the Ismaili religious sect — also was present. He did not perform the ceremony, however, although last night he said he would. Instead an Iranian priest officiated.

Mercy Slayer Dropped by Medical Group

Millford, N. H., May 10 — (AP) — Dr. Hermann N. Sander was dropped from membership last night by the Hillsboro County Medical society.

A terse statement issued by Dr. Lloyd L. Wells of Manchester, secretary of the society, said: "At a meeting of the Hillsboro County Medical society it was voted that Hermann N. Sander is no longer a member of the society." About 100 of the group's 175 members attended.

Dr. Wells refused to amplify the brief statement but it was believed the action was almost automatic in the wake of the state medical board's revocation last April 19 of the Candia physician's right to practice medicine in this state.

The 41-year-old doctor was acquitted last March 9 of murder in the death of his cancer-doomed patient that she and Aly might divorce.

Helps Build Up Resistance Against Them!

Do functional monthly ailments make you suffer from pains at such times? And do you start suffering a few days before your period from nervous, strangely restless, weak, dragging feelings — due to this cause? Then start taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve such symptoms. Pinkham's Compound works faster than relieve this monthly pain. It also relieves accompanying nervous, tense emotions of this nature. Regular use helps build up resistance against such female distress. The woman's right to health.

The big building at Wabash ave. and 15th street will be the meeting place for the some 10,000 delegates here for the four-day meeting. The convention, believed to be the largest church group numerically in the world, is meeting in a city north of the Mason-Dixon line for the first time.

The annex of the coliseum — for years the scene of presidential rallies, dance marathons and circuses — is filled with exhibits from scores of Southern Baptist schools, seminaries and organizations. The auditorium proper is decorated with huge banners and flags and an enormous platform backdrop on which "freedom's holy light" is emblazoned in letters several feet high.

The theme of the convention is "Freedom's Holy Light." One of the highlights of the sessions will be a united Baptist evangelistic service to be held in Chicago stadium Friday night. Some 25,000 persons are expected. The singing will be led by a choir of 1,000 Negro singers. Main speakers will be the Rev. Dr. Robert G. Lee, Memphis, president of the convention, and the Rev. Dr. J. H. Jackson, pastor of a large Negro congregation in Chicago.

Oct. 10, 1948, on a flight from Tsingtao, then a U. S. naval base. They have been held incommunicado. The Reds stiffly rejected all efforts to obtain their release.

The Communist radio broadcast this statement by Gen. Hsu Shih-yuh, commander of the Shantung military district:

"It was not until lately that Bender and Smith, influenced by our magnanimous policy toward prisoners, began to confess."

The history of communism is full of similar "confessions," obtained after long imprisonment. The broadcast gave this account:

Smith and Bender said the "objective of the flight was to reconnoiter the railways" in red-held Shantung peninsula and construction projects at Lai-yang, important Red base 72 miles north of Tsingtao.

On the way back, their plane "landed" shortly after midnight on Kiaochow (Kiaotung) peninsula across the bay from Tsingtao. The plane carried "charts and various military maps" of the U. S. espionage organization.

Acheson and Bivin Discuss Cold War

London, May 9 (AP) — U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson and British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin met today to discuss ways of winning the cold war.

Acheson came by plane from Paris, where he talked yesterday with French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman and agreed that the United States would give military and economic aid to keep warning Indochina out of the Communist column.

Acheson and Schuman also were reported in agreement on giving more political and economic freedom to Western Germany by easing the occupation law under which the Big Three control their German ex-enemies.

One of the problems the U. S. and British ministers were to examine was similar to that of Indochina — the Communist uprising against Britain in Malaya, source of much of the world's rubber and tin.

Diplomatic sources reported Acheson and Bevin also would:

1. Review postwar restrictions on Germany. For security reasons and to build up Western economy Acheson wants to tie the Germans more tightly to the rest of Western Europe. Britain fears German economic competition and France fears German re-armament.

2. Discuss how to speed up the increased unity of Europe. How far can Britain go in joining with the rest of Europe while still heading a commonwealth and sterling bloc?

How far can the United States go in supporting a unified Western Europe?

3. How they can work out agreed policies in the future, to avoid such embarrassments as the split over recognizing Communist China.

Britain recognized the Chinese Reds more than four months ago. France and the United States have refused to follow the British lead.

Continental Marine officer, in 1776 instructed recruiting officers to accept no candidates for the Marine Corp except those "of dependable and religious nature combined with proper robustness of body."

Control of Indo China Means Much in Asia and U. S. Is Ready to Provide Arms

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

One of the most important (and delicate) problems for solution in U. S. Secretary of State Acheson's conferences in Paris with French Foreign Minister Schuman, has involved France's request for aid in fighting communism in French Indochina — and Acheson already has provided at least a partial answer.

The secretary announced yesterday at the end of his first day's conference with Schuman that American military and economic aid will be sent to French Indochina immediately. The bulk of $75,000,000 already appropriated by congress to combat communism in the Far East will go to Indochina.

Diplomatic sources in Paris say that in return for this aid America wanted, and received, a guarantee of greater independence for Indochina. Schuman promised that "commonwealth relations" would be established.

Such an American qualification had been expected. The writing on the wall for all to see is that imperialism in Asia is dead. The big question has been whether France was prepared to accept that verdict.

In short, was Paris ready to grant Indochina greater independence. Or were our French friends asking us to help them maintain their empire. Uncle Sam is making it clear that, so far as he is concerned, imperialism is out, although he has no objection to dominion status for former dependencies.

But why all this bother about Indochina? What is its importance to the western world?

Well, Indochina is the Aladdin's lamp which might open up the riches of all southeast Asia to the Communists.

In other words it is a highly strategic area. This is true not only in the military sense but from the standpoint of natural resources and food supplies for an always hungry part of the globe.

There is no doubt that Indochina is in grave danger from the Communists. If they succeed in gaining control there they fall heir to a great wealth of rice and other foodstuffs, as well as minerals and rubber. By the same token the Western world loses an invaluable military base and a storehouse of resources.

Control of Indochina would be a godsend to the communist government in China. One of the Peiping regime's gravest dangers rests in its inability to meet the call of China's millions for food, especially with a disastrous famine sweeping the great Yangtze valley and threatening the lives of some 20,000,000 people, many of whom now are reportedly subsisting on grass roots and bark.

But that's not the whole story. With Indochina in their hands, the Communists would be in much better position to take over other neighboring countries.

Dullness on Rice Markets Seasonal

Dallas, Tex., May 10 — (AP) — Seasonal dullness ruled trading at southwest rice markets this week, the U. S. department of agriculture's production and marketing administration reports.

With farmers still busy seeding the new crop there was little activity in rough rice markets. However, a few thousand barrels of rough rice sold around Lake Charles, Louisiana, this week. Texas and Louisiana farmers reported about 85 to 90 per cent of the intended acreage planted. In Arkansas, where rains and wet fields delayed seeding, only about 50 per cent of the intended acreage had been planted.

Rough rice sales around Lake Charles saw No. 1 and 2 zenith move at $6.98 to $7.35 per barrel. No. 3 and 4 grades went at $6.60. Magnolia brought $7.20 to $7.30 barrel and Rexoro $8.50 for No. 1 and 2 grades. No. 3 blue-bonnet sold at $6.75.
